

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Executive summary

One page, for the reader who will decide from this and nothing else.

What it is

Airtistic.ai is an artist-first publication and services practice about AI in the arts. It is live in English, Spanish and French with 280+ pages, 200+ content units across its content collections, 50+ reviewed tools, 50+ glossary entries and 40+ prompts. Further languages are translated and staged behind an editorial pass.

What it sells

The commercial lines carry published prices: the AI Creative Suite subscription, the AI Readiness Assessment, Consulting, Case Implementation, Training and Speaking. A Digital Twin engagement is scoped on request. Every price is published on the site's own pages and quoted, with its path, on the revenue page.

Where it stands

Pre-revenue. The publication and the free tiers are live; the paid Suite tiers have no checkout yet and the service lines are contact-led. No revenue, run rate, client or pipeline is claimed anywhere in this kit.

INSTRUMENT

Priced equity. Not a SAFE: no valuation cap, no discount and no MFN clause, because the price is set.

US$500,000 pre-money · US$600,000 post-money

MINIMUM TICKET

US$10,000

RUNWAY

THE FULL ROUND BUYS

16.7% of the company

What the money does

12 months of runway at about US$8,333 a month: ship the paid tiers and the billing behind them, keep three live languages editorially current, open the services pipeline, and carry the infrastructure and obligations that come with charging money.

Who is behind it

A small human core — Carlos Miranda Levy, Coordinator of CEMI's Enhanced Intelligences — working with an AI roster that writes, answers and reviews on the site. The roster is disclosed as AI on every page it appears.

What is not published

Financial terms, revenue and detailed materials are available on request. Figures describe capacity built and operating today; forward-looking statements are identified as such.

Every stream and every published price: see the revenue page.
